RAIL ROAD SURVEY REACHES SALYERSVILLE FROM CINCINNATI.

LOOKS LIKE BUSINESS.

One of the Engineering Corps of the proposed Cincinnati, Licking Valley and Virginia, R. R. in charge of Mr. A. C. Walker, locating engineer moved their camp to the Blue Grass Spring at this place. There are several other corps in the field between the Licking and Ohio Rivers, all under the direction of Captain John B. Walker as Chief Engineer and working out a route from either Virginia or West Virginia with a grade not exceeding one half of one per cent, which is equivalent to 26 feet to the mile, and a curvature of eight degrees. We understand that a grade of one third of one per cent or about 3 inches to 100 feet has already been established and that Mr. A. C. Walker is working on this basis.

A rail road constructed along these lines will be more than up to date, and will be very expensive as to first cost, but will be enabled to transport its business at the very lowest cost per mile.

All of these conditions lead us to believe that this survey means more than the usual surveys that have been made at different times thru this section. In fact, we are reliably informed that this survey is being made in the interest of one of the large trunk lines. The expenses of such work are very heavy, running with thousands of dollars every month, and would hardly be undertaken by parties not in direct touch with the large financial interests which direct all the financial destinies of the large railroads from Wall Street. Mr. T. D. Buskirk who is secretary of the Company, and who has been here at frequent intervals during the past few months, as well as Capt. J. B. Walker, have been very reticent as to their plans. They have been willing to talk about the weather, crops and as to what club will win the baseball championship but very little as to actual railroad conditions. We hope that their actions will soon speak favorable news to Magoffin county and its sturdy citizens. Mr. Buskirk, who has been compiling data as to tonnage tributary to the proposed road, and has been assisted by Charley Arnett, one of our former Magoffin county boys, is expected here again in a few days and we hope that he can tell us when the locating parties will begin work. When these parties start work it surely will look like business, and a new era for our county.

WE Pity Them

As the time for the nomination and election of county officers is approaching, we think that the people of Lawrence county should well consider who shall serve them. This section has been greatly neglected in the administration of county government and we most earnestly hope that men who are broad enough to see the interests of all the people can be elected to represent us.

Every citizen should be interested in the administration of the county affairs and the construction of country roads as well as matters that pertain to the Commonwealth.—BIG SANDY NEWS.

MAN'S SOCIALITY OF NATURE

His Interest in His Species Manifest, as Pointed Out by Great Scotch Philosopher.

Man's sociality of nature evinces itself in spite of all that can be said with abundant evidence by this one fact, were there no other: The unspeakable delight he takes in biography. It is written, "The proper study of mankind is man," to which study, let us candidly admit, he, by true or by false methods, applies himself, nothing loath. "Man is perennially interesting to man; nay, if we look strictly to it, there is nothing else interesting." How inexpressibly comfortable to know our fellow creature; to see into him, understand his goings forth, decipher the whole heart of his mystery; nay, not only to see into him, but even to see out of him, to view the world altogether as he views it; so that we can theoretically construe him, and could almost practically personate him; and do now thoroughly discern both what manner of man he is, and what manner of thing he has got to work on and live on!—Thomas Carlyle.

EXERCISE MUST BE KEPT UP

Youthful Athlete Can Not Afford to Allow the Years to Keep Him From It.

If you take much exercise in your early life, you must continue to take more or less exercise all through life; otherwise harmful results may follow. Any part of the body which is not used will atrophy and waste; and the muscular system is particularly liable to this degeneration. Care must be taken, also, that the lungs are used, to a certain extent, every day—because the athlete develops a large lung capacity, and if he does not use his lungs later on in life they will be liable to become diseased. It is not the fault of the exercise which brings this about, but the fault of the neglect, in after life. Keep up a few daily exercises by all means, and particularly breathing exercises. If you do this, it will not only be the means of adding to your general health, but also will add many years to your life.—Physical Culture.

WHY SILVER TARNISHES.

Everybody is familiar with the tendency of silverware to part with its brilliancy and become tarnished when exposed to ordinary atmospheric influences, but not every one knows that the cause of the tarnishing is the action of sulphur in the air. Unless frequently cleaned, the surface of silver will become black in the course of a few months. The best way to keep silver bright without the necessity of cleaning is said to be to coat the surface with a thin solution of collodion varnish diluted with spirits of wine. After being applied with a soft brush the spirit evaporates, leaving a thin, glossy, transparent film on the polished surface. Warm water removes the varnish. Tarnished silver may be restored by careful rubbing with a soft cloth wet with dilute solution of potassium cyanide, one ounce to a quart of water, followed by rinsing.—Harper's Weekly.

WALLOP FOR THE WAG.

Passing a tall building where some workmen were hoisting lumber to the roof with a windlass the Regular Wag put up his hand in mock consternation.

"Hox, mister," he called to the foreman of the gang, "don't let that fall until I get past, will you?" The foreman looked at the Regular Wag and grinned.

"That's all right," he chuckled, "I guess it wouldn't hurt your head any."

Mountain Editors.

A mountain editor is a man who has the same profession as about forty others. He is not near what the blue grass "breers" think he is. Dunk Botts, Marse Henri, et al., believe that a mountain editor is a great big lumbering lummo and wears a "coon skin cap, overalls with a bib and brogan shoes run down at the heel, and accepts home-boiled hominy bacon and moonshine whiskey on subscription. Far from that. Some are bank vice-presidents, some are lawyers, some are merchants, some are reporters for Dunn and Bradstreet, and a few are almost paupers. They spend the big half of the time in cussing the milliners, telephone girls etc., because they won't "jot down" all local news, dunning delinquent subscribers, rushing the "devil", and experimenting with embossing processes which they imagine will make the letters stand up so high that they won't go a type-writers "without the use of 'females' and 'dies.'" Very few mountain editors are imported, the major portion of the characters being of "home talent." However, all strive equally to "moralize and educate the mountains of Eastern Kentucky," which they are performing better than anybody else.

LEAVES A TRAIL OF JOY

Efforts thr (Pa.) Philan- Rewards in illes."

Charles L. Boyer of Harrisburg, Pa., formerly of London, England, is devoting his life to making people smile—not people who are healthy, happy, or well to do, but poor people, invalids, children, and overworked mothers. Although busy all day he gives the greatest amount of pleasure with his automobile, which was presented to the people of Harrisburg, and built expressly for the purpose of giving free rides to those who are less fortunate. It accommodates a dozen adults or 20 children, folding steps at the rear, so that the children cannot hang on at the risk of life and limb; a big wind shield and soft backs for the sick. It started its career as a joy giver a year ago and has covered hundreds of "miles of smiles," as Mr. Boyer himself likes to say. The automobile is only one of the many ways which he has of bringing joy and hope to those who have fared ill in life's journey. Another unique means of promoting happiness is the Home Invalids' union, which he organized about seven years ago and planned for invalids and shut-ins, who live in homes where they have little to give them pleasure or cheer.—Christian Herald.

WORKED A SHREWD SCHEME

Good Old Minister Didn't Know It, But Was Operating a "Confidence Game."

Bishop William F. McDowell of Chicago was condemning lotteries. "Even church lotteries," he said, "may result in harm. Did you ever hear about Doctor Thirdly's bazar?" "Doctor Thirdly got up a bazar for the benefit of the heathen, and one of the features of it was a guessing contest for a doll."

"Surely, you would say, merely a guessing contest over a doll's name—guesses, five cents; prize, the doll itself—surely such a contest could do no harm."

"But after the contest, Doctor Thirdly, a cunning leer upon his innocent and good face, said to a friend:

"The doll contest was extraordinarily successful. It brought us in $600."

"Ah," said the other, "you must have selected a very odd name. What was it?"

"Doctor Thirdly laughed. "Ho, ho! That's the point," he cried. "I didn't name it at all."

COUNTY AGAINST NATIONAL POLITICS.

We are in receipt of an article by W. O. Howard, of Hendricks, which we do not publish, because we must cut out some "general news" in order to do so. We feel that we must not overlook local affairs to discuss National politics.

We believe that our county is now on the eve of one of the most progressive eras of her existence. The county seat is to be heated and lighted by natural gas in a few days. Magnificent stone and church buildings are now under construction. A number of dwellings are being erected. Extensive surveys are being made and our prospect for a railroad is greater than ever before.

Many good things could be said of the schools of Salyersville, but they, as well as many business enterprises, of Salyersville, are greatly hampered by the lawless

We have been informed that three barrels of whiskey were at Paintsville, a few days ago, for Salyersville. Already more than one of our leading citizens say that they are afraid to go through our county-seat. Others say that it looks as though good citizens must break the law by concealing deadly weapons, on their person, in order to be able to cope with the lawless. We hope that this is not the case. The following clipping from the Prestonsburg Monitor, should give us food for thought:

"There are those who have yet to learn that a newspaper is expected to discuss, either pro or con, any subject from cooking to the Millennium. Of course someone is going to get his toes trampled on. Yet this does not license him to curtail lecture the editor or try to intimidate him by tanking up on cheap liquor and then holding him up somewhere to tell him the permissible subjects on which to write. Editors usually like advice and instruction but John Barley Corn is a farce wherever he goes. Sometime he dictates a policy that won't go through and when his servant tries to urge this claim just a little too far a surprise is sprung and and this imagined gentleman of John's becomes a pigmy of reality and begins to feel the sentiments:

"Wad some power the gift to give us
To see ourselves as other see us."

The following letter is self explanatory,
Wenatchee, Wash., Aug. 12, 1912.
Editor Mountaineer,

Find inclosed money order for one dollar for which you will please send me the Mountaineer for one year.

While I am living in a civilized country, I would like to hear from the uncivilized once in a while.

Yours,

A. M. Craft.

Many of our citizens say that they do not want to take a county paper because they do not want to hear of all the bad news of the county.

Just as the ostrich will never get away from its enemies by hiding its head in the sand, so our people will never rid themselves of their enemies—the lawless men—by turning a deaf ear to the lawlessness of our county.

The one thing that we do need is more publicity of such things. This publicity will help our people to get their eyes open and see that every crime committed, even if it is nothing more than holding up the editor of their county newspaper, is a thrust at all law-abiding citizens in the county.

Our laws should settle all disputes when citizens cannot agree.

The battle is on between lawlessness and law. If lawlessness wins, each man must care for himself and his family instead of being protected by the law. When a so called "good citizen" refuses to be against a certain lawless act he then helps along the lawless cause. Every citizen in Magoffin County is assisting the one cause or the other. Many are assisting the cause of lawlessness not because they desire to do so but because they are afraid to speak as they feel. In other words they are prisoners to the lawless class. They fear that their lives or their property will be endangered if they speak as they think.

This sort of work would never have made America free from her great enemy in Revolutionary times. Neither will this sort of work ever make Magoffin free from her enemy in these lawless times. For these reasons we feel that we are duty bound to discuss local conditions and if anything is to be neglected let it be National politics.

We hope to soon be able to discuss National politics pro and con, but let us remember that neither of the three candidates could help make Magoffin more or less lawless. That's left for the people of this county.

ADAMS' WORDS ARE WEIGHTY On the Purity of Elections Depends the Existence of Government by the People.

There may be little solidity in an ancient idea that congregations of men into cities and nations are the most pleasing objects in the sight of superior intelligences; but this is very certain, that to a benevolent human mind there can be no spectacle presented by any nation more pleasing, more noble, majestic or august, than a government in which the executive authority as well as that of all the branches of the legislature, are exercised by citizens selected at regular periods by their neighbors, to make and execute laws for the general good. We should be unfaithful to ourselves if we should ever lose sight of the danger to our liberties—if anything partial or extraneous should infect the purity of our free, fair, virtuous and independent elections.

If an election is to be determined by a majority of a single vote, and that can be procured by a party through artifice or corruption, the government may be the choice of a party, for its own ends, not of the nation for the national good.—John Adams.

WILL NOT SIMPLY MARK TIME

Wise Man Sets His Intellectual Clock by Things That Are Permanent.

One sometimes sees in a clock-shop a number of timepieces, all running, but no two keeping the same time. It may be that they are kept going merely for their own sake without regard to conformity to true time. Or it may be that each one registers accurately the time of a designated locality. The differences may be real or only apparent. Denominations have a like appearance. Some of them seem to differ as if each one were saying: "I am going simply for the sake of going, or to find out whether I am going fast or slow." No one sets his watch or lays out his task by them. Others say: "I have the standard truth of things as it affects this particular place of mine. My fellows have the same truth, though in different figures." The wise man will not set his mind by those who simply mark time. Neither will he be misled by those differences which are really merely different points of view. He will keep his intellectual clock going to some purpose. He will compare it with things as they are, and set it by the stars.—Christian Register.

APPLE TREES UNCERTAIN.

An apple tree is the result of a graft from the tree that is known to be a producer of a certain kind and flavor of apples. If the seed were planted and one relied on it to produce a select grade of fruit the result would be disappointing, for the reason that from the seed the most remarkable varieties will be shown, notes Harper's Weekly. Perhaps they will be miserable little crabapples or misshapen, bitter fruit or a useless conglomeration. The seed somehow or other harks back to its origin, notwithstanding years of cultivation. The varieties of apples known today are a result of careful selection and constant grafting of the better kind from year to year until the present development has been attained.

GRANNA'S LOVE.

Little E stayed with his "granna," who worships the ground he walks on, and counted every beat of his quick-fluttering little heart. Oh, I never meant, in my old age, to become subject to the thrall of a love like this; it is almost dreadful, so absorbing, so stirring down to the depths. For the tiny creature is so old and wise and sweet, and so fascinating in his sturdy common sense and clear intelligence; and his affection for me is a wonderful, exquisite thing, the sweetest flower that has bloomed for me in all my life through.—Celia Thaxter, Letter to Mrs. Rogers.

A vast amount of ill health is due to impaired digestion. When the stomach fails to perform its functions properly the whole system becomes deranged. A few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets is all you need. They will strengthen your digestion, invigorate your liver and regulate your bowels, entirely doing away with that miserable feeling due to faulty digestion. Try it. Salyersville is rather quiet this week. Last week the town had two great excitements. The State Guards fired a few blanks while chasing their guns at the Armory. It seems that almost every one in town, even to the persons who did the shooting thought something had "happened."

On the previous day the town was in suspense for hours while Jack Arnett and Bill McPherson, who is one of the Commonwealth's witnesses in the murder Lee Patrick, were fighting and quarreling. Many thought that there would be serious trouble but things are quiet now. McPherson was tried and acquitted with Taylor Prater, who is a brother-in-law of Arnett, serving on the jury. So far as we know, Arnett has not been tried.

I am now stocking up on new goods. For rock bottom prices on meat, lard, flour, meal, and other groceries call on J. S. Fletcher. Your patronage solicited.

Did you know that you were judged by the stationery that you use? With twenty sizes of the newest and latest styles of type, as well as several hundred pounds of ruled and unruled paper and envelopes, a good job press and ink that cost $1.50 per pound, the Mountaineer office is equipped to do all kinds of job work.

GRAFTING BONE ON ELBOW

French Surgeon Reports Success in Two of Most Remarkable Operations on Record.

Dr. Huffer, a prominent surgeon of Paris, reports two cases of successful grafting of bone on a human elbow, in a communication to the Academy of Medicine. The two operations were performed more than a year ago, and as the subjects are in perfect health there can no longer be any doubt of the success of the experiment. The surgeon says that he was called upon to treat the arm of a young man of twenty-three. The elbow joint was affected by ankylosis, and had to be removed, as the entire arm was paralyzed. The bone of another patient, a lady whose foot had to be amputated, was used to replace the missing bone. Dr. Tuffier presented radio-graphic views showing that the arm and joint were now perfectly healed, and the young man, after 13 months, is able to use his arm. The second case was that of a young man of twenty-one, whose elbow had been destroyed by tuberculosis. In this case Dr. Tuffier grafted cartilage which had been preserved for five days from an operation performed on the leg of another person. This operation was carried out 14 months ago, and was a perfect success.

TEACH KINDNESS TO BIRDS

Good Effect of Having Children Provide Nesting Places for Them Quickly Made Manifest.

In some eastern school gardens, where trees abound, boxes and cans are fastened in trees to provide nesting places for birds preferring such houses. The change wrought in some of the boys encouraged to place boxes at home is little short of marvelous. One rather wild lad told the teacher in excited tones how he had watched a pair of wrens build in his box and each day reported progress till the end of the school term, when several eggs had been laid. He stated the old birds were not afraid of him and that he could now almost put his hands on them, and doubtless soon would. He said: "Gee! I used to stone every wren I saw, but I never will again." This change of attitude in even one boy was a sufficient recompense for all time and labor expended.

Wanted No More Chickens

Cat's Liked for Dainty Meals Permanently Cured by Sudden Shocking of the Nerves.

That even a cat may experience sudden reformation is proved by the experiment thus reported by Mrs. Gray, writes a Companion contributor.

I had been missing young chickens, one or two at a time, from the brood we were raising in the back yard. At last I discovered that our neighbor's cat was the thief. He was a big black fellow with a yellow stripe round his neck, and I did not want to cause his death, but I did desire very much to effect his reformation.

I watched him until I found out the time he usually slipped through the cross fence and came over for his supper of spring chicken. Then I brought a large cannon firecracker and set down by an upstairs window that overlooked the chicken yard to wait for him.

Directly he appeared, cautiously looking to the right and left, waving his tail in anticipation. He picked out his prey and crouched. I lighted the fuse of the cracker and held it as long as it was safe. Just as he was ready to spring, I pitched it to the ground.

It struck not a foot behind him, and exploded as it struck.

That cat went into the air almost two feet, with a blood-curdling squall, and alighted running. It never came back. It lived to a good old age in the house next door, but it never came into my yard again, and I do not believe a plate of cream would have tempted it six inches beyond the fence.—Youth's Companion.

SEES LIFE WORTH LIVING.

Milosav Mititch, of Semendria, Servia, was so alarmed at the prospect of wearing in his coffin the inevitable wreath of fresh flowers—a stigma of bachelorhood—that when he felt death approaching, not long ago, at the age of forty-six he sent for an old schoolmate, the only spinster in the town, and begged her to marry him. The ceremony was performed in what everyone believed to be the death chamber, but the care of Mme. Mititch, who acknowledged that she loved in silence for over thirty years, wrought a wonderful change in the invalid. He is now a confirmed match-maker, and has just organized a guild for promoting early marriages.

NO CARD PLAYING IN CH.

Woman Visitor to America From T Country Shocked at the Custom Here.

A woman who is a native of Chile was talking recently about the duty she had in accustoming herself to card playing among women when she came to this country.

"In Chile card playing among women is undreamed of. Perhaps is not too much to say that a Chile would no more play cards than New York woman would enter Broadway enloup. It isn't that it exactly, or wholly, a matter of morals with us. It just isn't the thing to do. It is not conventional. When I came to New York I brought a daughter-in-law with me, a Chile girl. She and I were both horribly shocked to receive an invitation to bridge party in the day time. It was too much for us and we declined. Says the New York Post. 'Other similar invitations came, and key coming. Finally, our curiosity got the best of us and we went to one of these affairs. Even after we got over our sense of outraged convention the whole thing seemed curious to us. The funniest sight of all was the women with little tags on them, as if marked 'by fast express,' or running up to another woman with a little card to be 'punched.' Finally, we got sufficiently accustomed to 'take hand,' but even yet I never do without a covert feeling that I am putting myself beyond the pale."

HURT HIS FEELINGS

"Gee! I never seen such a lot of epiphannous dorga. Dey seems to think I'd hurt 'em."

ROOT COTTON FOUND IN ORIENT.

An interesting new tropical product is the "root cotton," described by S. Kusano, a Japanese botanist. It is a fibrous covering of the roots of Fagura integrifolia, an abundant plant of the Philippines, and especially of Botel Tobago, an island near Formosa. The substance seems to be a kind of cork tissue, resembling the ordinary cork developed on the bark of trees. The fibers, of light straw color and silky luster, are very fine, soft, and weak, and are easily pulverized to a waxy powder. They are less hygroscopic than ordinary cotton, having remarkable resistance to wetting by water. In Botel Tobago the natives use the root cotton for calking boats, and in the Philippines it is employed for such purposes as stuffing pillows. Not least of the advantages of this material as a possible article of commerce is the fact that it can be removed without injury to the roots, thus making cultivation simple.

FERTILE NEW ZEALAND.

As showing the wonderful productivity of the soil in some of the localities of New Zealand, one grower recently took 32 cases of Bon Creten pears off a single tree, while several plum trees actually fell over owing to the enormous weight of fruit the trees were carrying. This is not an isolated case of heavy bearing, as numbers of other growers in the same districts have had similar experiences.

Remarkable Action of Automobile Driver Warranted Doubt as to His Sanity.

We came upon the automobile standing upon the brow of the hill. "Hello!" we say to the chauffeur. "Broken down?" "No, sir," he responds. "Out of gasoline?" "No, sir. We have plenty." "Tire punctured?" "No, sir. The tires are in perfect condition." "Lost your way?" "No, sir. The country hereabouts is very familiar." "Dropped something from the automobile?" "No, sir. Nothing of the sort." "Then why are you standing here? Why are you not shooting down the hill and across the level at a terrific speed?" "I do not care to do that," says the owner of the machine, who has been silent until this moment. "I had my automobile stopped here so that I might enjoy the magnificent view from this elevation."

With a frightened glance at him, we turn and hasten to the nearest town to warn officials that an evidently insane person is at large in an automobile.—Kansas City Independent.

GREED CAUSED SNAKE'S DEATH.

A snake in search of food at East St. Kilda, near Melbourne, Australia, writes our correspondent, came upon a chicken's egg. The snake sucked in the egg, which passed towards the region of his tail in the form of an oval swelling. The snake then raised its head and, perceiving a knot-hole in the wooden hen-roost wall, inserted its head and the fore part of its body and swallowed a second egg.

On the approach of the owner of the hen-roost the snake tried to retire, but the second egg would not pass through the knot-hole, and when he tried to advance the egg in his tail equally impeded his progress. Thus "egg-bound" at both ends, the reptile fell a victim to its own greed.

WANTED HIM TO BE RIGHT.

Bank Director—I am surprised, sir, to learn that you drop into our bank every day and whisper tips to our cashier. Don't you know the information must be a great temptation to him to use the bank funds to speculate with? Wealthy Broker—Yes. "And yet you are a heavy stockholder in our bank."

"Just so."

"Then, in the name of common sense, what is your motive?" "Well, the fact is, I don't know whether your cashier is honest or not, but if he isn't honest, and if he does use the bank funds to speculate with, I want him to keep on the right side of the market. See?"

CONTRACT NOT YET AWARDED.

Society Reporter—I hear that you are making plans to get married in this country.

Count Nogoodsky—Ah, what shall I say? Making plans? No, no. I had had so plans prepared so long time. I am now busy—what you say?—talking to estimates.—Judge.

POULTRY

GOOD HOUSE FOR CHICKENS

There is No Need of Elaborate Structure, but It Should Be Dry and Free From Draughts.

In describing what he deems the best house for chickens, Mr. Glenn T. Sponenbergh of Oswego county, New York, writes the Farm and Home as follows:

Front Elevation and Floor Plan.

If concrete is used in the construction of the foundation and floor it will make a rat and water-proof floor that is sanitary and easily cleaned. The rest of the house should be built of wood, as the forms for concrete would cost nearly as much as the siding itself. The frame is 2x4-inch material and the siding and roof boards of yellow pine surfaced both sides. If the sides are covered with roofing paper, it makes a tight and very warm house. The roof should be covered with some good roofing laid according to directions so as to make it as tight as possible. Shingles are not suitable for a building of this kind, as the roof is apt to be damp most of the time. The curtains front house is the driest and most easily regulated in accordance with the weather. It is cheaper to build, is more easily cleaned and the floor space is more fully utilized than in the scratching-shed type. This house should be built tight so that the ventilation is from the south, therefore no drafts. With the scratching-shed house the roosting room is almost always sure to be damp. But by removing the partition this is eliminated and healthier hens are the result. If any one doubts that a flock of hens stir up much dust just let him stand on the front side of a curtain front house when they are fed. Open the curtain and when he sees the cloud of dust they raise I believe he will think fowls need more ventilation.

A shed roof is best, as it is easier to build, provides greater volume of sunlight and has no peak to become filled with cobwebs. The pens should be deep rather than long and shallow. This places the sunlight on the floor instead of on the back wall, therefore a dried floor and happier hens. The pens should be large enough to accommodate 50 hens and two or more cocks. One 30 feet deep and 12 feet wide will furnish the required floor space.

The accompanying plans of side and front elevations and floor arrangement illustrate what I think is the best house. This contains pens 12x30 feet, the front being 8 1/2 feet and the back 5 feet high. This is as high as is necessary to build and as low as is easy to work in. The front contains, to each pen, one double each window with the upper sash hinged at the top. This is opened when too cold or stormy to raise the curtain. A frame 6x2 feet, with the top hinged to swing in, is covered with muslin or cheesecloth. On the outside of this opening is tacked woven wire to keep the fowls in while curtain is open during the day, except during a hard storm and in very cold weather.

The platform under the roof is 8 1/2 feet from the floor, and the nests are the same height, being entered from the platform. This leaves nearly all the floor space available to the hens, and every nook and corner is cleaned with ease. The roosts are 2x4-inch material rounded at the top. For a breeding house I would make the pens 12 feet deep and 8 feet wide, which would hold as many hens as are desired with one cock, but for a laying house the larger size is the better and more economical.

Condition of Laying Hens.

A hen in the best laying condition has some surplus fat on her body. This means that her body wants have been supplied, and there is some to spare. A very fat hen seldom lays well. The first part of the egg which is made is the yolk, which contains 50 per cent of albumen and 54 per cent fat. New growth and egg production only come from the surplus food not needed to keep the body. Corn is an excellent grain, but to be so relied upon the fowls that are liable to overeat. Wheat, with its by-products, is the most useful grain to the poultryman.

Hard Run Red. Keeping fowls on hard run with frequently come swollen feet and legs. They must have some loose ground to scratch over.

MADE HONEYMOON TRIP PAY

Young German Couple Start Married Life With Alert Eye to the Main Chance.

A young Dresden couple have invented a new way of paying for honeymoons, but it has brought them inside the meshes of the criminal law. The happy pair, who had married against their parents' warning, a short time since, decided to spend ten days visiting Munich, Nuremberg, and other romantic South German cities. On leaving the registrar's office the bridegroom took possession of the official's overcoat, which contained a purse with thirty marks. The bride resolved also to bring a marriage portion. While another bridal pair were waiting for legal union she made off with the other bride's wedding ring, which had been incautiously left on a table. Thus financed the bride and bridegroom reached Munich. There, after examining the Pinacothek gallery, they made for the nearest registrar, and gave notice that they desired to be married. While the registrar was instructing the groom as to legal formalities the bride appropriated a gold-mounted cane. At Nuremberg the registrar was also visited and notice given of intent to marry. A detective who had himself come in the role of bridegroom watched the couple's suspicious movements and arrested both parties. The other day they were convicted of stealing; but they were released with a caution on the ground that honeymooning couples are not responsible for their acts.

FROM AWAY BACK

"How old is ye' all, Uncle Boaz?" "Laws, chile, how kin I tell. I specs calendars wasn't invented when I was borned."

KIT CARSON'S DAUGHTER.

Mrs. W. T. Mills, who was Miss Annie Wilson when she taught the first public school in Westport, told how Kit Carson, the scout and frontiersman, brought his daughter, Teresena Carson, to her school to be educated.

"It was the first time I had seen Kit Carson, although I had heard much about him," she said. "He came into my school one day leading the little girl by the hand. Her mother was an Indian and she was born away out west. She was a pretty little girl, but she could not speak a word of English and she was as shy as a prairie chicken. She wore a buckskin dress gayly trimmed with colored beads, and Carson wore moccasins and a buckskin suit and a fur cap. He had brought his daughter on horseback across the plains to be educated and he told me he wanted her to be a grand lady and he left a bag of Mexican silver on my desk. I taught her to speak English and to read a little and then he came again and took her away."

HALF SPEED THERE.

"How did you spend your vacation?" "Went through Europe by auto." "I suppose you enjoyed the various points of scenic interest." "Yes; we slowed down a trifle when passing Mount Blanc and Lake Como."

THE WRETCH.

"Nobody knows how I have suffered," she complained. "Does your husband abuse you?" her friend asked. "No, but he can sit for hours without hearing a word that I say."

AFTER THE DANCE.

Hostess—Well, dear, and what sort of a time did you have? Lady (displaying torn dress)—Oh, er—rag time!—London Opinion.

OF COURSE HE WAS EXCITED

Possible Incarceration of Mother-in-Law Naturally Stirred Up Young San Francisco Man.

A San Francisco mother-in-law went to the orient and, coming back, was caught trying to smuggle in a lot of choice silks.

She had to pay duty and a fine. Then there was talk of a criminal action to follow.

Her son-in-law called on the customs officials. "Is it possible," he asked, in a severe tone, "after my mother-in-law has paid the duty on the stuff and her fine, that you contemplate criminal action?"

"We are considering it," the customs official replied gravely.

"And if my mother-in-law were to be convicted, as she probably would be, she would have to go to jail?"

"I think so."

"Do you mean to tell me you intend to do this to a woman—a woman who has already expiated her fault and recompensed the government?"

"I do; but look here, old chap, don't take this too hard. I've got to do my duty, you know. Don't feel so bad about it."

"Bad!" shouted the son-in-law. "Why, my dear sir, this is the first gleam of sunshine that has entered my home in twenty years!"—Tit-Bits.

DUMMY VILLAGE AS TARGET

English Artillery Trained Their Guns on Exact Representation of Small Town.

To test the guns of the brigades of the British Royal Field Artillery, in camp on Dartmoor, Devonshire, a dummy village was specially built as target. The "village," covering twenty acres near Okehampton, was built in three weeks by artificers from the camp, whose inventive and artistic genius was allowed full scope. Seen from about a mile away, it looked like a typical English hamlet. Clustering round a church, were a number of cottages. Strips of canvas were laid through and around the village to represent roads. In the village were representations of children at play and men and women at their daily duties. Near by was a farmyard stocked with dummy cattle. And to complete the scene, there was the village inn.

The buildings were made chiefly of canvas, roofed with corrugated iron and stones taken from the hillsides. It was about 6,000 yards from the point from which the troops fired, and invisible to them. The scheme was that the village was held by an invading enemy.

SAVED BY THE KNEIPP CURE.

A disciple of Kneipp, who taught the curative effects of walking barefoot on the grass, started out shortly after midnight on a recent rainy morning to take the cure in Tompkins park.

Though he had a gold watch and a good-sized "wad" in his pockets, he wore an old slouch hat and rough-looking clothes.

As he was nearing the park in one of the streets running to it from the south he suddenly found himself facing a pistol in the hands of a man who apparently had sprung from nowhere.

"Fork over your"—the robber started to say, but stopped. "Why you ain't got any shoes!" he disgustingly exclaimed.

"Ain't got any money to buy any, you see."

But he was talking to the air. The thug had vanished.—New York Mail.
